Pain this book solves

YouTube says: use more complex grammar.

You force conditionals and relative clauses — and create new errors.

Score stays stuck.

Stratum position: accuracy first; range second.

Practical target

Aim for frequent error-free sentences.

Use complex structures only when you control them.

Safe complex toolkit (master these)

- because / so / although / while
- relative clause: which / who / that
- conditional: If governments invested..., people would...
- passive (especially Task 1 processes)

Risky under pressure

Ultra-long sentences with 3 commas and unclear subjects

Rare inversions you never practised

Forced cleft sentences every paragraph

High-frequency errors to hunt (5 min edit)

1. Articles (a / the)
 2. Subject–verb agreement
 3. Countable/uncountable (information, advice, research)
 4. Tense consistency (Task 1 past charts)
 5. Run-ons (Cities are crowded they need...)

Rewrite drill

Over-complex & broken
